Curriculum and Learning Process

The design and formulation of all the core and specialization courses for the two-year MBA program is carried out in phases.

Phase – I: Internal deliberations:

St. Joseph's College has AUTONOMOUS status; therefore, the institute has the liberty of revising the curriculum as per the changing industry needs.

Faculty members keep in mind the following points during the deliberations.

- Evaluation of Overall Credit System
- Adequacy of Courses offered in all specializations.
- Identification and formulation of new elective courses.
- Re-evaluation and Modification of the Program Outcomes and Course Outcomes.
- Identification of new Continuous Assessment Tools.
- Devise new teaching strategies as per student population needs.
- Analyse PO and CO Mapping for further improvements
- Introduce new self-learning platforms like Massive Open Online Courses (MOOC).
- Update UGC and AICTE recommendations.

Phase – II Approval and Ratification by Board of Studies

Annually a formal meeting is called for where the final curriculum and syllabi for various courses are formally presented to the Board of Studies. After discussion the suggested changes are made and their approval is obtained.

Phase – III Approval by Academic Council

As the next step, the curriculum and syllabi along with the Regulations are presented to the Academic Council in the meeting. After another round of audit and alterations, the course curriculum goes forward for approval.

Phase – IV Reviewed by Management Committee

As the final step the management committee goes through all the revisions made based on the recommendations by the board of studies and academic council, and finally director will approve the final curriculum.

St. Joseph's Institute of Management (JIM) is a Jesuit Business School. JIM is approved by All India Council for Technical Education (AICTE), New Delhi and affiliated to Bharathidasan University, Tiruchirappalli, Tamil Nadu. It is a part of St. Joseph's College, founded in 1844 by the Fathers of the Society of Jesus, popularly known as Jesuits; established much before the foundation of the University of Madras. Making good use of the autonomy given by the University Grants Commission (UGC) in 1978, the college excelled in every realm and has produced great men and women for others. In addition to all the high ratings for its Performance and service in mission of education, the college was awarded with a special Heritage status. In this college of high repute, JIM resides with a sole purpose of Forming Responsible Leaders. In JIM, we look at management education differently. Not teaching, but learning lies at the core of activities of the business school. Everybody learns here. Professors learn, students learn and the Jesuit management learns every day. JIM creates an ecosystem of learning in which students develop their competence to become leaders for tomorrow. Consciously we guide them to look at their learning holistically, not merely in terms of profit making; we do not want them to become just industry ready graduates, but society ready graduates who make a difference in the lives of people and who are change-makers. JIM strives to create a meaningful future for its students, with market-oriented curriculum and innovative learning pedagogy. Learning, training and development are the triadic axis around which JIM operates and this makes it stand tall vis-a-vis other management institutions.

St. Joseph's Institute of Management (JIM) offers a Master's program in Business Administration (MBA). The program is spread over two years of four semesters and a Summer Internship Placement (SIP) program after the completion of the first year. The curriculum for the course has been designed with the objective of providing a comprehensive view of management with specialization in certain functional areas. Placement facilitation and entrepreneurship promotion are the mainstay of the program. It strives to produce ethically conscious leaders with social responsibility and concern, for the marginalized.

The curriculum is restructured biannually taking into consideration the needs of the students and the demands of the changing business environment. Experienced professionals from industry and academia is involved in the syllabus restructuring process. The curriculum lays its emphasis on building a sound personality, enhancing competencies and acquiring sound knowledge about the industry. In the first year, the students are enabled to sharpen their skills and get well grounded in all areas of management studies. They are equipped with the skills and tools necessary to improve their confidence and communication so that they gain maximum advantage of the management education. At the end of the second semester, a student is required to spend eight weeks in an organization undergoing an on-the-job training regarded as 'Summer Internship Placement (SIP)'. Students also undertake a project during the SIP. After the completion of the internship, every student has to submit an observation report and has to face a viva-voce. Internship provides practical exposure that s/he can successfully relate the MBA Programme with classroom learning and field experience. It also gives an opportunity to the student to have a clear exposure to the stream, that s/he wants to specialize in. The second-year courses place emphasis on specialization in functional areas of management such as Finance, Marketing, Human Resource Management, IT and Analytics and Supply Chain Management. The student can choose any two of the specialisations offered. In the final semester the student will undertake a major project in his specialisation. Thereby a student would have specialised in two functional areas at the end of the program.

JIM has evolved a distinctive pedagogy, which focuses on active learning and personal growth of the students. Students play a major role in the learning process by adopting their own learning strategies such as self-learning, classroom presentations, in-class interactions, case analysis and peer learning. Competent faculty and expert faculty facilitate an active and interactive learning process. Debates, panel discussions, competitions, workshops, plant visits, project-based learning are all integrated into the teaching-learning process. Case Study method is employed in all the courses. The programme brings in cases from the real-life experiences and also models that are used and tested in industries and organisations. More of contextual experience than mere texts, abstract theories and models that are isolated from concrete reality are presented. It is believed, this could instruct and form the character of a student along the learning process. Learning does not stop in classrooms but moves to training outside class rooms. In tandem, learning and training helps, a student form herself/himself to become a competent individual. In some cases, special workshops and short courses are conducted to train in areas that are not directly covered during lectures in classrooms. In all this, mentoring plays a key role in gauging the progress a student makes and it helps enormously to make course corrections. In brief, distancing from conventional teaching and learning model, JIM follows a learning-centred education where everybody - professors, students, parents and management learn.

The learning goals, are set for every course and we have put in place a mechanism to measure how the assurances are fulfilled. First, students map their competencies in which they become aware of the gap between what they are and what they aspire to become. From there each student is guided to become a team player through class room lectures, group discussions, live projects and seminar presentations and interpersonal interactions, leading to personal growth. Second, students are motivated to develop critical thinking by asking fundamental questions and finding solutions to problems and issues in businesses. After sifting through available sources of knowledge, an MBA student should learn to form his/her own opinion on issues. Third, in this learning and evaluation, an emphasis is placed on looking at concepts globally and analyse the impact of business decisions locally. Fourth, the tests, quizzes, seminars and live-projects aim at helping students develop communication skills that are essential to be successful management professionals as they need to articulate what they feel and think. In all this, a student through his/her learning becomes a person who gives importance to values, and aims to become 'man and woman for others'. The eco-system of learning never loses its focus on learning for others.
